

Conf

explained to children

Here we are, specialists have announced it:

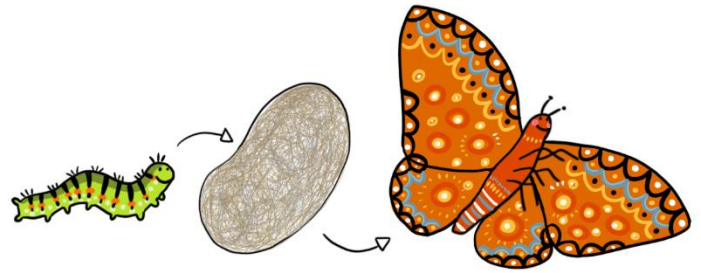

The confinement is a weird word reserved for adults only. Children have a much prettier word with the same meaning:

Actually specialists have thought that the best way to stop Coco the virus to meet everyone is to ask everyone to stop meeting Coco.

You know, in order to become a beautiful butterfly, the caterpillar first needs to build a cozy cocoon.

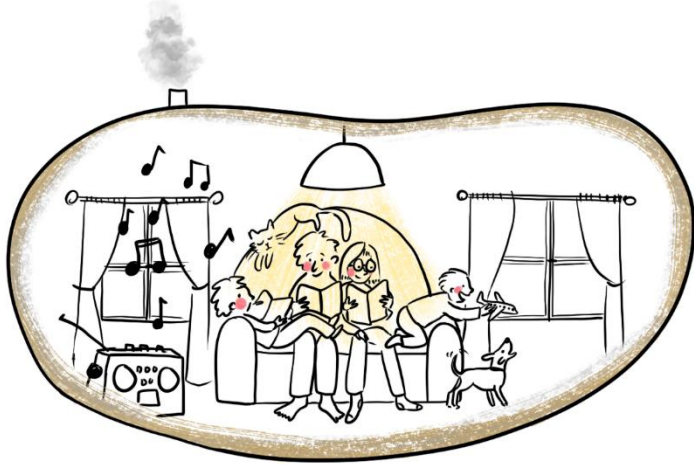

Being isolated from the rest of the world gives her more protection and time to take care of herself and to turn into a beautiful butterfly.

Then, as the caterpillar did, each of us can form its proper cocoon to let Coco get bored outside!

Your own cocoon is your house or your apartment, and it is way better than the caterpillar's one because you're not alone in there!

Inside you can do a lot of things and enjoy time with your family.

All people, all families are building their anti-coco cocoon, that's what cocoonfinement is about!

Specialists have asked everyone not to get out of their cocoon except for:

- Going to work
- Shopping for food and basic goods
- Going to the doctor
- Working out

Thanks to it, Coco will soon be on his own and that's too bad for him!

Then, specialists will tell us that the containment is over, we will get out of our cocoons and as the caterpillar became a butterfly we will discover a brand new freedom ...
